PHOTOGRAPH ON FRONT COVER

This photograph shows a view of the cemetery from Section N looking towards the south. The eastern end of Section O is in the foreground, Section Q is on the far side of the access road, and Section U is beyond Section Q. The large monument with an urn at centre right is for Lt. Col. John Nairne (Q64). The obelisk at centre left is for Joseph K. Boswell (U77). The Saint Lawrence River is visible between the trees.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We wish to thank Les Presses de l'Université Laval, the University of Toronto Press, and the Library and Archives Canada for permitting the reproduction of the biographies of B.C.A. Guky and Malcolm Fraser appearing in the Dictionary of Canadian Biography Online; and also Robert Wilkins for his gracious permission to include his interesting article on Dr Charles Blake.

We also wish to thank Charles Guellemette of Lévis, Québec, for the use of his plans of Mount Hermon Cemetery; and Gerald Oakson of Québec City for scanning these documents so that they could be included in this report.

William Park, before he began the task of recording the monument inscriptions in Mount Hermon for the Second Edition of this report, sought the advice of several people who had experience in recording tombstone inscriptions. One of those was Mr Marc Letourneau, a member of the La Société de généalogie de Québec, who very kindly showed him his publication of the inscriptions of the Mont Marie Cemetery in Lévis, Québec. Mr Letourneau included the date when an inscription was recorded in his report in order to avoid doubt about the validity of a transcription should additions appear later on a monument. He also indicated how an inscription was arranged on a monument. These additions to an inscription entry provide the reader with very useful information. We have adopted both in this Second Edition. We offer our gratitude to M Letourneau for contributing these ideas for our report.

We are indebted to Dr Henri-Pierre Tardif, a long-time active member of the La Société de généalogie de Québec, for promoting this project from its inception. On behalf of Gordon Morley he liaised with the Société de généalogie de Québec to obtain volunteers to do the recording, and with the administration of Mount Hermon to obtain permission for access to the cemetery. He provided the French translation for notes written by Gordon describing how the project was to proceed. After Gordon transferred to Ottawa he again acted on his behalf in transmitting a copy of his report to the Société. He maintained his interest in the project and provided strong support and encouragement throughout its development. Much of its success we owe to him.

A number of people assisted at the start of this project under the direction of Gordon Morley. They were assigned various cemetery sections for recording as outlined in the Preface To The First Edition. We note here the invaluable assistance of Gaston Broisseau, Richard Dubinsky, Raymond Gingras, Rita Morley, Constance Morley, Madeleine Morley, Denise Raiche, Jean-François Tardif, and the late Kenneth Laurie.

Brian Treggett deserves special credit for his patience and support during the long preparation of this Second Edition. He was very helpful during the recording of the monument inscriptions, often providing data from his cemetery records to supplement doubtful information found in some monument inscriptions; and on many occasions when we encountered inscriptions on monuments that were obscured by vegetation he permitted his maintenance workers to assist us. His encyclopaedic knowledge of the cemetery also proved very valuable.

Finally, we wish to thank La Société de généalogie de Québec, especially Gabrielle Carrier and Michel Lamoureux, for undertaking to publish this report. Their support concerning this work is greatly appreciated.

Finalement, nous voulons sincèrement remercier La Société de généalogie de Québec, spécialement Gabrielle Carrier et Michel Lamoureux, de publier ce document. Leurs appuis à ce travail sont grandement appréciés.

MOUNT HERMON CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

PREFACE TO THE SECOND EDITION

My involvement in the Mount Hermon project happened unexpectedly. One summer day in 1998, my wife and I decided to drive to Old Quebec to spend a few pleasant hours. As we were passing by Mount Hermon, I suddenly decided to turn in to visit the gravesite of a colleague who had died in 1974. I had often passed by the cemetery and each time I would think of paying my respects to my colleague but never did. I was sure that I remembered the location of the gravesite but, after all those intervening years, I failed to find it. When I returned to the administration office at the entrance to the cemetery to ask for directions, the superintendent, Brian Treggett, greeted me warmly. After listening to my query, he walked me to the gravesite that was only a short distance from the office. There was something about that short walk in the beautiful surroundings on a magnificent summer day, and the courteous welcome by Mr Treggett, that had a strange affect on me. As I spoke with him, I felt compelled to make a commitment to him to complete the work that Gordon Morley had begun many years before. My impromptu visit had indeed affected me much more than I had imagined when I made that sudden turn into the cemetery that day.

I was aware that the remaining sections of the cemetery that had not been transcribed, because I had a copy of Gordon's report – Mt Hermon Cemetery, Sillery, Quebec, Tombstone Inscriptions, A Partial Listing – given to me some years before. (His report is called the First Edition in this current report.) Before the sudden turn of events that summer day that precipitated me into this project, I had no intention of completing the work. The manner in which Gordon and his other associates had done it years before made me very reluctant to attempt to do it. However, having made a commitment to Brian Treggett to complete the work, I had to find some satisfactory way to proceed.

Gordon transferred to Ottawa before he could complete his work so as he mentioned in his report he offered to make available much of his material to anyone who might wish to continue with the project. In an article¹ of which I was unaware, Dr H.P. Tardif gave a summary of the state of the project in 1992 and reiterated Gordon's appeal for interested members of the Société to undertake its completion. In his article, Dr Tardif commended Gordon highly for undertaking the work that he was confident would be of great value to historians and genealogists. Apparently, however, no one took up the invitations presented by Gordon and Dr Tardif.

The problem that I now faced was how to complete the transcriptions without copying by hand. Initially, I thought of transcribing the inscriptions directly on a portable computer on site at the cemetery. Not having a suitable computer, I set about upgrading my computing equipment. In December of 2001, fully intending to complete the project in this manner, I bought a portable Macintosh computer. However, by this time, I also began to think that I might be able to use a camera to photograph the inscriptions on the monuments. I could then transcribe the inscriptions directly from these photographs displayed on the computer screen to a word processing file open on the same screen. I decided to explore this method in spite of the advice that I had received from several experienced people who had tried photography and had subsequently abandoned it.

To test the feasibility of this idea, in the spring of 2002 I took some photographs using an ordinary film camera of monuments in Section Y, a small section of about 15 monuments. The results were promising; that is, I could read the inscriptions on most of the monuments from the photographs. Not yet convinced of the reliability of the method, I made a second test by photographing the first few monuments of Section U, again using an ordinary film camera. These results were very encouraging; I was able to read more than 90% of the inscriptions on the monuments directly from the photographs without resorting to other aids. Based on these good results, I abandoned the idea of using a portable computer to gather the inscriptions; in retrospect, this was the right decision. Therefore, in the spring of 2002, I purchased a lightweight digital camera. Although I was now ready to begin recording the inscriptions using the camera and recording the transcribed inscriptions on the portable computer, a technical problem with the computer prevented me from proceeding that summer. It was not until late May 2003 that I finally began recording the inscriptions on the monuments in the remaining sections of the cemetery.

MOUNT HERMON CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

During the following three months, I became proficient in transcribing inscriptions. I recorded the inscriptions on nearly 1000 monuments in about 33 days starting in late May of 2003 and ending in early September. The good summer weather helped; I could pretty well pick any day to go to the cemetery. I began with Section Y, then continued with Sections U, B, D, A, E, L and finally N. In September, I checked the 100 or so inscriptions in the First Edition that had been marked for checking with asterisks. At this point, the main task of compiling the inscriptions had been completed.

The remaining task was to create the index data for the inscriptions that I had recorded and merge them with the existing data for the indexes created by Gordon. Producing these indexes has been the most difficult part of this project and it is the main reason why it was only recently completed. The reader can read my comments about the recording method and the indexing procedure in the Technical Notes Section.

There are data from two epochs in this edition. The inscription data from Gordon Morley and others were gathered from 1978 to 1984. The data that I supplied for the remaining sections of the cemetery date from 2003. Although I would have liked to bring the earlier work up-to-date, I could find no easy way to do so. The more than double the number of monuments in the previous work also made this too much for me to accomplish alone. Nevertheless, we are confident that important family histories contained in the inscriptions on older monuments have now been completely recorded and preserved for future consultation.

We hope that with the completion of this work researchers and genealogists and general readers will find it of interest and useful in their family history research.

MOUNT HERMON CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

PREFACE TO THE FIRST EDITION

General

This document is a partial listing of the Tombstone Inscriptions of Mt Hermon Cemetery, Sillery, Quebec. It covers approximately two thirds of the cemetery tombstones and while not complete is presented now as a research tool for both those working in genealogy and for historians. The material in this document was recorded over the period 1978-1984. Hence, given the ravishes of nature and the continuing deterioration of the condition of the tombstones, a considerable amount of the material included will have already been lost. It is hoped this material will form the core of a more definitive work covering the entire cemetery.

The Need

Mt Hermon Cemetery has been the principal Protestant burying ground in the Quebec City area since the year 1848. It is situated in Sillery on the south side of St Louis Road. The cemetery is described in a number of sources. One such is an article in the Quebec City newspaper the Soleil of 12 November 1989 written by Louis-Guy Lemieux based on material gathered from Brian Treggett the fifth in a family line of directors of the cemetery. As well as the evident historical value of the inscriptions, there is a great deal of often critical genealogical information on the inscriptions which takes on great importance given the often scanty nature of the entries in the parish records of the protestant churches especially when compared with the corresponding entries in catholic registers where parentage and place of birth are often available in detail. In my own case in 1977 I carried out an exchange with a Mervyn Meddlycott, now Sir, an active genealogist and President of the Somerset And Dorset Family History Society. He was to research my mother's ancestors in Somerset and I was to research his ancestor Louisa Stevenson born in Quebec City in 1839 and married in England in 1862 to Maj Gen Sandilands, whom she had met presumably while he was posted in Quebec.

I was able to find a great deal of material on both of Louisa's parents: her mother was Maria Gugy, whose origin was well documented, coming from an illustrious family whose origins go back to Switzerland. I was also able to learn a great deal about Louisa's father, William Stevenson, who was a fairly prominent businessman in Quebec City: member of the Quebec Board of Trade, director of Trinity House, director of Quebec Fire Assurance Office etc. However his origin eluded me until I was able to locate his tombstone in Mt Hermon indicating he was born in 1797 in Arbroath, Scotland.

Status

At the urging of Dr Henri Tardif, active in the Société de généalogie de Québec, and Kenneth Laurie of the Literary and Historical Society a number of members of these organizations gathered at the cemetery on a Saturday in June 1978 and a project to copy the inscriptions began. It was continued by myself sporadically over the next several years to the point where some 2500 inscriptions had been copied leaving approximately 1000 uncopied. With my relocation to Ottawa in late 1990 any thoughts of completion of the project by myself became highly questionable and I tried to put the material in shape so that it could be both made available to researchers and would be in a form that others could take it up and complete the effort. The status is summarized in the following table:

Notes for the User

The document is laid out with the inscriptions listed according to the Section and includes for most Sections a sketch to allow location of the stones. A person index of some 7500 entries as well indexes of place names, titles, organizations and ship names are also included. While every effort has been made to accurately copy the inscriptions, only a limited amount of verification has been possible and several of the sections [H and K in particular] were typed after my departure from Quebec City and hence no checking has been possible. An asterisk * has been used where a suspected discrepancy in the copying is suspected. It is noted that surnames have been capitalized in the document and it is evident that some errors have inevitably arisen in this respect since it is not always clear what is and what is not a surname. Apart from the addition of periods to allow easier scanning the punctuation has been kept as closely as possible to the original, although license has been taken in using lower case when upper case was mostly used in the original. Lines of the inscription have been broken by a slash / mark. Unreadable parts are shown by dashes --. Where there is some doubt in the inscription brackets {} have been used. Also brackets [] have been used to set off copier's remarks in a few instances. There are several instances where the inscriptions themselves include brackets, but it is felt these are quite evident and should lead to no confusion. Indentation of the inscription has been used to designate the various faces of some of the larger stones. In the more straightforward cases this could be simply the four faces as in the case of an obelisk, or in the case of some of the more complex monuments as in the case of say an obelisk over a cube this could be each of the eight faces.

Notes for Further Research

The document has been typed on a word processor using Word Perfect 5.1. For interested parties wishing to continue the project and/or correct the completed parts a diskette of the present document can be made available.

HISTORY AND PLAN OF MOUNT HERMON

MOUNT HERMON CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

Au printemps de 1847, un groupe de personnes de foi protestante composé d'hommes d'affaires, de marchands et de constructeurs de navires convoque une assemblée publique afin de discuter de la possibilité d'acquérir un terrain en vue d'aménager un cimetière rural. Comme il n'y a plus de place dans le vieux cimetière protestant situé près de l'église St. Matthew's sur la rue Saint-Jean, les autorités municipales exigent qu'un nouveau cimetière soit établi hors de la ville.

Le 11 février 1848, The Quebec Protestant Cemetery Association est créée avec l'aide de John Gilmour (16), un marchand de bois bien connu membre du premier conseil de ville de Sillery et fondateur du cimetière. L'Association, présidée par George O'Kill Stuart, a comme objectifs d'amasser l'argent nécessaire à l'achat d'un terrain et d'établir le nouveau cimetière protestant. Le premier conseil d'administration de cette association est un bel exemple de coopération œcuménique en cette année 1848.

Le 30 mai 1849, le document constituant le nouveau cimetière est enregistré. C'est à ce moment que le nom officiel de Mount Hermon* est attribué au lieu.

* Le mont Hermon est situé à la frontière du Liban et de la Syrie, et au nord d'Israël. Il est considéré depuis des temps immémoriaux comme une montagne sacrée.

In the spring of 1847 a group of Protestant businessmen, shipbuilders, merchants and clergy called a public meeting to discuss the possibility of buying land for a rural cemetery.

The old protestant cemetery located near St Matthews Church on rue Saint-Jean was full and the authorities requested that a new cemetery be established outside the city limits.

With the help of the well-known lumber merchant John Gilmour (16), member of first municipal Council of Sillery and the founder of the cemetery, The Quebec Protestant Cemetery Association was created on February 11th 1848. Its first president was George O'Kill Stuart and its objectives were to collect the money necessary to buy land for a new Protestant cemetery and to lay out such a cemetery. The first Board of Directors was a fine example of ecumenical cooperation in the city in 1848.

The deed incorporating the new cemetery was registered on May 30th 1849. It was at this time that the new cemetery was officially given the name of Mount Hermon*.

* Mount Hermon is situated on the border between Lebanon and Syria, north of Israel. It is mentioned several times in the Old Testament as a sacred mountain.

MOUNT HERMON CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

The Well-Travelled Corpse Of Dr Charles Blake

By Robert N. Wilkins

Dr Charles Blake was a late 18th early 19th century Montrealer whose life in this city was of considerable interest. The same can also be said of his death for it was especially in death that the good Doctor Blake became noteworthy because of the number of times his corpse was moved about.

Born in Bath, England in 1746, Dr Blake arrived in the Province of Quebec in the Spring of 1776 as part of a British contingent to fight the American Revolutionary War. Upon his return to Montreal in 1777 from an unsuccessful expedition at Fort Stanwix (Rome, N. Y.), Dr Blake was appointed to the position of Royal Surgeon at the General Hospital. Two weeks later he was given the commission of Surgeon to the Montreal Garrison, a position which he held until December of 1783. He subsequently retired from the military , settling in this city for good. He mixed medicine and business in a successful private career, a career which only ended with his death in Montreal in 1810.

Dr Blake's name appears in many legal documents in the Province of Quebec, later Lower Canada. One of the more fascinating of these is from one of the early murder cases tried before the Court of King's Bench. After a guilty verdict had been rendered against one Ignace Vaillancourt, Chief Justice Monk pronounced: "That the prisoner being taken hence from the Common Gaol of the District from whence he came, and from thence, the day after tomorrow, that is to say on the ninth day of March instant, to the common place of execution: and that he then and there be hanged by the neck till he be dead, and that his body immediately afterwards be delivered to Charles Slake, Esq., of Montreal, Surgeon, to be dissected and anatomized."

Dr Charles Blake married twice and by latter marriage there were two daughters: Mary Harriet Blake, who died at the age of 20; and Ann Blake who married Justice Thomas Cushing Alywin (after whom the east end city street is named). It was Ann Alywin who became very much preoccupied with the eventual fate of her father's corpse.

For one reason or another, when Dr Blake died in 1810, his widow decided not to bury him in either of Montreal's principal Protestant cemeteries of the time: St Mary's New Burial Ground [today Parc des Veterans, near Papineau Metro station] and the Old Protestant Burial Ground [today Complexe Guy Favreau]. Instead, Dr Blake's corpse was placed in a burial vault on land which the Blake family owned near Champlain and Dorchester Streets in the city's east end. For over 35 years Dr Blake rested in this remote place of repose, joined as the years passed by his daughter, Mary Harriet and two others.

However for some unknown reason, on May 23rd 1845 the four bodies were removed from the vault and taken elsewhere [probably the nearby St Mary's Cemetery] only to be returned to the vault with a fifth body, Sarah Ann Lane, on August 21st 1852. In the interim, a quarter of the city had burnt to the ground in the great fire of July 8 1852. Lost in that fire was St Thomas Anglican church, which had been built by the Molson family on the land of the famous brewery for the spiritual well-being of their employees and the surrounding community.

Accordingly, it was decided to proceed quickly to the construction of a replacement church, this time to be named St Luke's. The land upon which St Luke's was to be constructed was donated to the Bishop of Montreal by Dr Blake's daughter, Mrs Ann Aylwin, provided that the chancel of the church be built over the burial vault. St Luke's was so constructed and held it's first service on June 17th 1854.

Initially St Luke's did quite well, but by the middle of the 1870's the church fell upon difficult times. Fearing the eventual sale of the church building, Mrs Aylwin obtained a special act of the Provincial Parliament which permitted the transfer of the bodies in the Blake vault to some safer venue. As her husband [who had died in 1871] was already buried in Quebec City's Mount Hermon Cemetery, this seemed the ideal and most logical location.

Accordingly, in the middle of May 1875 by special act of parliament, Dr Blake's body was removed from its "FINAL" resting place for the fourth time and transferred to Quebec along with the bones of more than a dozen others who had come to rest over the years in the Blake family vault. They were buried for the final time on May 25th 1875 in Mount Hermon Cemetery. Mrs Aylwin joined her husband and father in 1881.

As for St Luke's, it survived for another half century at the same location when, finally, about 1925, the church building was sold to the Russian Orthodox congregation of St Peter and St Paul St Luke's Anglican Church is

MOUNT HERMON CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

Bartholomew Conrad Augustus Gugy

GUGY, BARTHOLOMEW CONRAD AUGUSTUS, soldier. MHA, seigneur; b. 6 Nov. 1796 at Trois-Rivières, eldest son of Louis Gugy, member of the assembly, seigneur, and legislative councillor, and of Juliana O'Connor; d. suddenly on 11 June 1876 at his residence of Darnoc, at Beauport, near Quebec.

A Huguenot by birth, and the son of a Swiss colonel who was a French royalist before entering the service of Great Britain, Bartholomew was educated at the school of the Reverend John Strachan at Cornwall, and enlisted in the Canadian Fencibles as soon as war was declared in 1812. He fought beside his father, was promoted lieutenant, and distinguished himself at the battle of Châteauguay. He then studied law and was called to the bar on 7 Aug. 1822. He was not long in acquiring a numerous and lucrative clientele, but his subsequent career was above all political and military.

In 1831 Gugy was elected to the assembly for Sherbrooke, and was re-elected until the period of the 1837–38 disturbances. As he was one of the small number of Tories who could express themselves readily in French, he had frequent and stirring verbal bouts with Louis-Joseph PAPINEAU. Gugy fought with supple oratory, using irony, banter, sarcasm, and insolence. He had the knack of finding the best way to exasperate the speaker, and the latter would respond loudly. (According to certain champions of Papineau, it was this same Gugy who was chiefly responsible for the improprieties of language of the Patriotes and their leader.)

In 1837, at the first echo of the revolt, Gugy volunteered for the militia. With the rank of colonel, he led the cavalry at Saint-Charles, and it may have been he who personally seized the "column of liberty" the Patriotes had erected in honour of Papineau, and carried it in triumph (with two subalterns) to Montreal. At Saint-Eustache he again distinguished himself by his enthusiasm. He is said to have led his horse into the church in order to water it at the stoups. He was accused of cruelty, and even of walking knee deep in the blood of French Canadians. But a pamphlet, Attestation de six curés au sujet de la conduite du colonel Gugy en 1837–1838, re-establishes the truth in his favour. Later, having billeted his troops at Saint-Hyacinthe, Gugy stayed at the Dessaulles' house, where the Papineau children had taken refuge. He gave a wax doll to Ezilda and two picture books to Gustave.

From 22 Nov. 1838 to 2 Jan. 1839, Gugy held the position of police magistrate at Montreal, and on 14 March 1841 he agreed to become adjutant-general of militia for Lower Canada. Until his resignation on 30 June 1846 he was one of the favourite targets of the Liberal party of Louis-Hippolyte La Fontaine, which accused him of not appointing enough French Canadians to the higher ranks of the militia. After the Union in 1841, Gugy had stood as a Tory candidate in Saint-Maurice County, but had been defeated despite the scrutineer's efforts on his behalf. In fact, the supporters of his opponent, Joseph-Édouard Turcotte, had seized the polling booth. He had also been a candidate in Sherbrooke but was defeated by Edward Hale. In 1848 he was elected by acclamation in the town of Sherbrooke. In the house, Gugy voted regularly against La Fontaine's ministry, and during the famous debate on the rebellion losses bill, Gugy, with Sir Allan Napier MacNab, was the principal leader of the opposition. His speeches contributed not a little to the almost electric tension that finally exploded during the riots following the burning of the parliament building in 1849. He reacted with his customary spirit and impetuosity, and began to fight with the very people who had been aroused by his speeches. During the night the parliament was set on fire, he seized several of the agitators to stop them from setting upon the speaker, Augustin-Norbert Morin; the next day, 26 April, on the Champ de Mars, when the rioters were assembling to launch an attack on the homes of Francis Hincks, Benjamin Holmes, and La Fontaine, Gugy climbed a lamp-post and harangued the crowd for two hours, trying in vain to persuade them to disperse. These pirouettes (physical and political) led Le Canadien of 9 May 1849 to portray the colonel as "a hitherto undescribed variety of the species, one who belongs to no nation in particular . . . being part Swiss, part Irish, part French, part Indian, and we believe part —." After 1850, through fear of the annexationists, Gugy gradually drew away from the Montreal Tories. This is perhaps why he did not venture to become a candidate in the 1851 election.

That year Colonel Gugy was nevertheless appointed one of the Canadian representatives to the universal exhibition in London. In 1853 he received another civil post as inspector and superintendent of police at Montreal, but resigned the same year to retire to the estate at Beauport that he had inherited in 1840 from his father, together with the seigneuries of Yamachiche, Rivière-du-Loup, Grandpré, Grosbois, and Dumontier. After a stinging defeat in 1854 at the hands of another Tory, James Moir Ferres, in Missisquoi-Est, he retired from politics for good.

MOUNT HERMON CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

Hot-headed, irascible, endowed with a colourful nature, the bulky, loud-voiced colonel was not vindictive, or intolerant, or sectarian. As a seigneur, he collected his rents with regularity, but never resorted to vexatious measures. He liked lawsuits. In 1844, for example, he had given a thrashing to a young delivery-boy who, on Francis Hincks' orders, persisted in leaving the Pilot at the colonel's door. Hincks had prosecuted him, and Gogy had particularly enjoyed his victory. Later, he brought actions against a certain William Brown which lasted 22 years, and which were ended only by the fire that destroyed the Palais de Justice at Quebec in 1873. Towards the end of his life Gogy often returned to Quebec, riding erect on horseback despite his 78 years, to ensconce himself in the library of the Palais de Justice and regale the young of all ages with the details of his former litigations and addresses to the court. He does not seem to have had a fanatical temperament. If he was never popular among French Canadians, it is because he too often upheld principles which they rejected.

By his two marriages, with Louise Duchesnay and Mary McGrath, he had one son and three daughters.

Malcolm Fraser

FRASER (ffraser), MALCOLM, army and militia officer, seigneur, and office holder; b. 26 May 1733 in Abernethy, Scotland, son of Donald Fraser and Janet McIntosh; d. 14 June 1815 at Quebec, Lower Canada, and was buried five days later in St Matthew's cemetery.

In July 1757 Malcolm Fraser purchased an ensigncy in the 78th Foot. The following month his regiment landed at Halifax, N.S., and Fraser subsequently took part in the sieges of Louisbourg, Île Royale (Cape Breton Island), and Quebec. When the regiment was disbanded in 1763 he retired on a lieutenant's half pay. His loyal services as a soldier entitled him to petition for land. On 27 April 1762 Governor Murray granted him the seigneurie of Mount-Murray, which was situated within the boundaries of the former seigneurie of La Malbaie. Only two such grants in fief and seigneurie were made by the British government, the other one being given to Fraser's companion in arms John Nairne. That same year Fraser rented from Murray part of the seigneurie of Île-d'Orléans including the parishes of Sainte-Famille and Saint-Jean, and in 1766 Murray granted him 3,000 acres at the back of his seigneurie of Rivière-du-Loup. During the American Revolutionary War Fraser became a captain and paymaster in the 1st battalion of the Royal Highland Emigrants. He gave the alarm when the Americans who were besieging Quebec launched their attack on 31 Dec. 1775 under Richard Montgomery. Later his company was stationed mainly in the Montreal and Richelieu valley regions. When his battalion was disbanded in June 1784, Fraser again went on half pay, but it was withdrawn five years later because of the discovery of irregularities in his regimental books. He had to wait until 1795 to clear his reputation and again collect his half pay, along with arrears.

After the American invasion Fraser continued to acquire landed property. He bought the seigneurie of L'Islet-du-Portage from Gabriel Christie in 1777. Two years later he purchased for £1,000 the portion of Île-d'Orléans that he rented from Murray. In 1782 he took over part of a long-term lease that Murray had given Henry Caldwell. The territory, which was rented for £90 per annum for the first 11 years and £100 after that, comprised the seigneuries of Rivière-du-Loup and Madawaska and the fief of Île-Rouge. In 1786 he received 3,000 acres in Chatham Township. Fraser also turned out to be one of the major landowners in the Upper Town of Quebec. In the period 1777-91 he bought five houses and lots on Rue des Grisons, between Rue Sainte-Geneviève and Rue Mont-Carmel. His common-law wife, Marie Allaire, herself purchased some land on Rue des Grisons, of which Fraser took over the mortgage. Around 1790 he also acquired the house belonging to merchant John McCord on Rue de la Fabrique. In addition, in 1782 Fraser had set up the Madawaska Company in partnership with Caldwell. He had become a moneylender as well. He lent out the sum of £300 in 1773 and £1,000 in 1784. Three years later he made a loan of £200 to Hugh Blackburn, a miller at Mount-Murray.

Thus, beneath the exterior of a landed gentleman, Fraser showed himself to be an astute businessman, whether he was investing in property or putting out money. He did not hesitate to invest even when he had to mortgage his seigneuries. The seigneurie of L'Islet-du-Portage had a mortgage of £400 on it in 1790, and again in 1810. In 1791 there was a mortgage on Mount-Murray made out to surgeon James Fisher. On occasion Fraser leased his seigneuries, contenting himself with collecting the rent from them. They brought him income from fishing, wheat, saw logs, and seigneurial dues.

Fraser was an absentee seigneur. At Quebec he held for many years the office of justice of the peace, to which he was first appointed in 1764. He was a founding member of the Agriculture Society, which was created in 1789, and he became a subscriber to the Fire Society in 1790. Three years earlier he had been appointed a major in the Quebec Battalion of British Militia, a posting he retained until 1794. In May of that year Governor Lord Dorchester [Guy Carleton] promoted him colonel in the Kamouraska battalion of militia, and in 1805 he was colonel of the Baie-Saint-Paul battalion of militia. During the War of 1812, despite his advanced years Fraser led the militiamen from Baie-Saint-Paul to Quebec.

By 1803 Fraser had begun divesting himself of his real estate, giving his son Simon his 3,000 acres in Chatham Township on condition that Simon secure letters patent. Two years later he sold his share in the seigneurie of Île-d'Orléans to Louis Poulin, a miller at Sainte-Famille. Finally, in 1810, he gave his son Joseph his seigneurie of L'Islet-du-Portage.

One of Fraser's biographers, William Stewart Wallace, asserts that he had numerous illegitimate children, five of them with Marie Allaire, who came from the seigneurie of Beaumont. Three other children, Ann, William, and John Malcolm, were born later of his liaison with Marguerite Ducros, dit Laterreur, who was from the seigneurie of Mount-Murray. In his will, dated 4 Nov. 1811, Fraser bequeathed an annual pension to her and divided his Canadian estate among all his children.

TECHNICAL NOTES

Recording the inscriptions

The traditional method used earlier for recording the inscriptions involved hand copying the inscription information directly from a monument and recording it in a notebook - perhaps using some form of shorthand. These notes become the source for the inscription data entered into a word processing program or some other form of recording. Hand copying can be very time consuming and the reliability of the resulting inscription data is dependant on the accuracy of the person recording the data. Any doubts as to the correctness of the notebook data would require a return to the cemetery.

I decided to photograph the inscriptions on the monuments using a lightweight digital camera. Photographs make reliable facsimiles of the inscription data, very likely much more reliable than hand-copied notes. Selecting the various settings of a digital camera manually can be daunting so to simplify the procedure I set the camera to automatic mode. Occasionally when an inscription was in deep shadow I would set the camera to shutter priority to minimise camera jiggle, at the risk of having a dark photograph. In such a case, I relied on software to brighten the picture when viewing it later on the computer. This simplified method of using the camera made it is very easy to record the inscriptions on a monument. In about four hours, I was able to record between 200 and 250 photographs on a 250 MB (Megabyte) flash memory card. JPEG compression reduced each photograph in size to about 1 megabyte; the slight loss of picture detail caused by JPEG reduction was not a serious concern. Most pictures could be read easily on the computer screen without enlargement, however some required enlargement to be able to discern some lettering. There was no loss of detail when enlarged because all the photographs were taken at maximum resolution of about 3 megapixels. After photographing a monument, I noted the numbers of the photographs that I took in a notebook fixed to a clipboard. Rather than stand while writing the notes, I found it more convenient to sit on a small folding stool that I carried with me. The stool - and my lap - provided a stable platform for making notes.

I adopted a two-pass system for recording the inscriptions. On the first pass through a cemetery section, I only photographed the inscriptions on the monuments, without resorting to other techniques. The photos were then transferred to the computer from the camera and stored according to their corresponding monument numbers. Once the photographs were stored in the computer, I simple opened them - one by one - on the computer screen then transcribed the displayed inscriptions to a Word document open on the same screen. When an inscription in a photograph was not clear, I marked the corresponding text in the inscriptions document in red to indicate that the data must be verified. Once the first pass through a cemetery section was completed, I printed a copy of the inscriptions single-sided. I found it very confusing to use a double-sided printout during the second pass through the section.

During the second pass of the section at the cemetery, I checked the data marked in red against the inscriptions on the monuments, noting any changes or corrections on the section printout and/or the section notebook, and when necessary re-photographing. In some cases, I resorted to chalking the face of the monument and photographing the face again. This technique worked particularly well on monuments whose marbled reflective surfaces were difficult to photograph.

All the photographs have been retained; they make excellent facsimiles of the monuments. At any time, I can "return" to a monument without having to travel to the cemetery. The photographs combined with the notebooks and section printouts containing corrections collected during the second pass provide a complete and reliable record of the recording of the inscriptions. They are essential references during editing.

This part of the project was relatively easy to do. In the course of a little over three months - from late May of 2003 to early September - I recorded the inscriptions on approximately 1000 monuments. The next step of creating the indexes turned out to be much more difficult. I describe that in the following section.

MOUNT HERMON CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

Indexing the inscriptions

I began with five indexes created by Gordon Morley: Persons; Places; Titles, Situations, Positions; Organizations and Institutions; and Ships. In the course of the work, I created two more: Military and Tragic Events, and Inscription Languages. As I had an older Version 6 of Microsoft Word from my previous computer, I intended to use the indexing feature included in Word to build the seven indexes.

The standard method for producing an index in Word involves the insertion of indexing text into the text of the document that is being indexed. The indexing text is called hidden index text because it is encoded so that it is not printed with the document. Moreover, in order for a page number to be included in an index, the hidden index text must be entered directly in the document at the place that is being referenced. In addition, when several indexes are being created, as is the case in this report, each hidden index entry must include a special identifier to indicate to which index the entry belongs. Inserting these identifiers adds another level of complexity to the already difficult work of producing the hidden index entries.

The index entries for the Mount Hermon inscriptions resemble cross-references rather than page references. Because cross-references do not generate references to page numbers, they do not have to be inserted directly into the text of the document at the page where the cross reference originates. It is much easier to work with the index data in basic unformatted form if they are put into separate files, one for each of the seven indexes. In fact, Gordon had generated his five indexes in this form. In the case of the basic Persons Index, each record (or paragraph) contains the data for an index entry. Each record contains three fields where the first field is the family name in capital letters, the second field is the first name(s), and the third field is the monument identifier (defined as a cross reference). Two tab characters separate the three fields. The other basic index files were similar except their records only had two fields. In this form, Gordon's five index files were readily viewable in columnar form and were easily sorted either alphabetically by name or by monument identifier.

After a few months of dithering – debating with myself what to do to his data, insert it into his inscriptions text as hidden index text, as required by the standard indexing method, or to work with it directly as given to me in basic unformatted form – I finally decided to abandon the standard method. This decision also defined how I was to produce the index data for the inscriptions that I had recorded.

The great advantage that using basic unformatted text has over the standard method is that none of the index data have to be retyped. All the data can be copied from the transcriptions report and pasted into the basic index file. For example, to create the basic Persons Index entry

I only had to select then copy the family name, SMITH, from the inscriptions report then paste it into the persons index and do the same thing for the first name, Albert, and the monument identifier, C41, while inserting the appropriate tabs. Index data in this basic text form is much easier to edit than if it is buried inside the inscriptions report along with the inscriptions data.

Those are the obvious advantages of using this method over that of the standard method. However, the index data in this form is not recognizable by Word as index text. The data must be transformed into a form that Word can recognize as index text in order for this data to be used to create an index. For example, the example above must be transformed into a record of the form that Word can recognize as an index entry. Word will then produce the following entry in the resulting index:

It should be noted here that for a family name alone with no first name, as is the case for a family header on a monument, we use the underline character "_" to signify the absence of the first name. The basic index entry is entered, using U47 as an example, as that when transformed as outlined above produces the following entry in the index:

IMPRIE [Tab character] _ [Tab character] U47 [P]

MOUNT HERMON CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

IMPRIE: _ U47.

It has been a long struggle to transform record (1) to record (2). I have omitted the details to spare the reader a lengthy and detailed description of the method and the effort involved in solving the problem. The transformation method involves the execution of three macros as well as other auxiliary steps. Anyone wishing to know the details can contact me, William Park, via the Société de généalogie de Québec². As of this writing, the three macros are written in WordBasic for execution under Version 6 of Word, an older version of Word. They must be rewritten in Visual Basic in order to run under a newer version of Word: Microsoft Office:mac v. X. I will possibly make these conversions at some future time.

EXPLANATORY NOTES ABOUT INSCRIPTION ENTRIES

The general format for an inscription entry in this report is of the form:

*Monument identifier -- Transcribed inscription --
Comments about the monument.*

Monument identifier

The cemetery was originally designed as a cemetery-garden so the grave plots do not lend themselves to a rectilinear layout. The cemetery administration adopted a unique method of identifying cemetery plots that we were unable to use in this report. For this reason, the person recording the inscription data assigns monument identifiers arbitrarily; they have no relationship to the plot identifiers used by the cemetery administration. The main purpose of the identifiers in this report is to serve as cross-references between the tombstone inscriptions and the related indexes. They also serve to indicate the approximate locations of the monuments.

Location maps are included to help indicate the location of the monuments. In order to simplify the cardinal directions in the cemetery, the northerly direction of Côte de Sillery (formerly named Côte de l'Église) has been designated as Cemetery North (CN). The other directions are referenced to CN. True north is northeast of CN.

Identifiers begin with the section of the cemetery in which the monument is located followed by a number. Monuments belonging to a family group are numbered with hyphens as "-1, -2, etc. Example: U18. New monuments -- new or monuments missed during recording -- are entered with alphabetic characters added to the nearest numbered monument. Examples: U180-A and U281-A. Where a new monument has been added to the beginning of a row, the number for that monument will follow the number of the last monument in the preceding row. Example: U248-N. When a new monument appears somewhere between two monuments separated by a large distance, the physical separation is indicated by an unnatural alphabetic sequencing. Example: U178 then U178-P then U179.

Transcribed inscription

The transcribed inscription entry shows the inscription on a monument. On a simple monument, such as a flat stone, the inscription is complete on one face. On an upright monument, erected on one or more supporting blocks, parts of the inscription often appear on separate faces on the sides of the monument and on the surfaces of the supporting blocks. In recording the inscription on a monument, we collected the various parts of an inscription in top-to-bottom order, starting first with the main side of the monument then continuing in a clockwise direction on the other sides. In the transcribed inscription entry, the parts of the inscription that we recorded are each indented to reveal their form as a part of the inscription on a separate face.

It is usually easy to distinguish which is the main side of a monument; but when it is not clear which side is the main side, we simply define it to be the side of the monument facing the surrounding access road. U47 and U115 are examples; in both cases, it is not obvious which side is the principal side. In these two cases, the main side of each monument is defined as the side facing the nearest access road.

In most inscription entries, we have not indicated the sides of the monument on which the various parts of the inscriptions appear. The entries for O29 and Q64 are two of the few where we have noted the sides of the monuments.

The vast majority of inscriptions or parts of inscriptions are engraved symmetrically in a column about an imaginary centre line running from the top to the bottom of the monument. This symmetry is not shown explicitly in the transcribed inscription entries in this report as each line is only shown terminated by an oblique stroke (/).

MOUNT HERMON CEMETERY TOMBSTONE INSCRIPTIONS

Inscriptions beginning with one column – such as a family header – then changing to two or more columns are shown separated by two oblique strokes at the head of each column. Example: Y10-1

JOBIDON // Charlotte / Louisa / de KASTNER / 1886 – 1966 // Pierre L / JOBIDON / 1887 – 1983

Multi-column inscriptions without a leading header show the beginning of each column by two oblique strokes. Example: U1

// H.A. GIBB. / 1922. // Jas. GIBB. / 1869.

Inscriptions changing from multi-column to single-column form are shown separated by three oblique strokes. Example: U143

// Robert / 1913 – 1963 // Marianne / 1910 – 1954 /// ANDERSON

Data not yet engraved are indicated by [nil]. Example: Y3

ROY / Louis / Pierrette / [nil] / Gontran BÉDARD / 1930 – 1994

Data shown between curly brackets ({}) are doubtful or not readable.

Parentheses shown in an inscription appear on a monument. Example: “(Bill)” in D119.

In loving memory / William (Bill) SOMMERVILLE / Sept. 1903 – April 1974

A few monuments have asymmetric inscriptions that are difficult to describe. One such monument is D257. It is shown in this report as

// PENNEY // Allan / 1896 – 1973 / Beloved husband of / Edith READE / 1903 – 1999

But to show the arrangement of the inscriptions on the monument more clearly, it could be described as

// [nil] / nil] / [nil] / [nil] / [nil] / PENNY // Allan / 1896 – 1973 / Beloved husband of / Edith READE / 1903 – 1999

However, the numerous lines with nil in this inscription imply data not yet engraved. This would be misleading; it is doubtful that any inscriptions will ever be placed in the space above PENNY.

Comments about a monument

Comments are shown in square brackets to indicate that they do not appear as part of the inscription on a monument. The last line begins with the latest date that the inscription has been recorded or verified. There can be other comments such as the type of monument and the name of the Monument Manufacturer and Engraver (MME). Where a MME has engraved his name on a monument, this information is shown as part of the transcribed inscription. However, in many cases, a MME has simply placed a label on the monument. We have arbitrarily decided that an un-engraved label is not part of an inscription; therefore, it is not included as part of a transcribed inscription. It is shown however as a comment. There is a separate section in this report for MME listings.

Some military monuments have been designated as Maple Leaf Legacy Monuments. Photographs of these will be included in a collection appearing at the web site <http://www.mapleleaflegacy.org/>.

Mount Hermon Cemetery interment records from 1848 to 1904 are accessible on-line at the Bibliothèque et Archives nationales, Québec. An article³ by Renald Lessard describes these records. Refer to the following URL to access the on-line records:

SECTION I: APPENDIX

Renumbering table

Inscriptions I66 to I92 in the First Edition are now listed in Section L of this Second Edition. The remaining monument numbers in Section I were renumbered to keep the numbering in sequence. The equivalence table relating the old numbers to the new numbers is shown below.

Monuments in Section L in the Second Edition that were listed in Section I in the First Edition.

L1	<=>	I66
L2	<=>	I67
L3	<=>	I68
L4	<=>	I69
L5	<=>	I70
L6	<=>	I71
L7	<=>	I72

L27	<=>	I88
L29	<=>	I89
L30	<=>	I90
L31	<=>	I91
L34	<=>	I92

Because of the large gap in the numbering in Section I caused by the transfer of these monuments to Section L, the remaining monuments in Section I were renumbered consecutively to fill the gap. The renumbering formula relating the monument number in the First Edition (old number) to the monument number in the present edition (new number) is

Old number (in the range I93 to I227) = New number (in the range I66 to I200) + 27

Le ciel était magnifique marée d'étoiles / avec toute l'apparence de l'éternité / soudain fendait l'espace un trait de lumière étincelant / une étoile quittait le monde de la nuit / L'espace d'un instant elle a vécu / l'espace d'un moment sa trace marque le ciel / et soudain plus rien / sauf / dans le coeur et l'esprit des humains / qui auront eu la chance de la voir / de l'admirer / de laisser sa lumineuse joie marquer leur âme / à jamais / on dit qu'une étoile filante / est un grain de sable / qui se consume totalement / si rapidement et avec une telle intensité / qu'il peut émouvoir / les yeux les plus lointains / et les coeurs les plus durs / j'ai eu cette chance / de connaître une étoile / elles s'appelaient Hélène / elle a marqué mon coeur pour toujours. / Son parrain Pierre
