

proper order. But this raises a problem: some townships do have a proper name with the directional after the name. In an attempt to indicate which is a proper name and which is my reversal of the proper name, I have used a comma when I have reversed the name. Thus North Monaghan is listed with a comma as Monaghan, North and Sandwich West is listed without the comma. My guide was the Official Name Index in the 1971 Municipal Directory, an index created because of exactly the same problem I faced. Unfortunately it lists only townships that existed as separate political entities in 1971. For the others I have had to guess. Particularly in old records, a township may be recorded both ways.

Invariably there are dates that I cannot find but can indicate a range. I have used "<" (before) and ">" (after) for these. "<1901" means this event occurred before 1901. "1906>" means this event occurred after 1906. "1843><1852" means the event occurred between 1843 and 1852.

Providing lists of townships creates potential confusion. When I say "Burleigh Anstruther and Chandos" do I mean Burleigh Twp, Anstruther Twp, and Chandos Twp, or do I mean the United Township of Burleigh Anstruther and Chandos? To ease this confusion, I have done two things: I do not use commas within a township name and always use commas in a list of townships, and I always use "&" within a township name and always "and" in a list. Thus "Burleigh Anstruther & Chandos Twp" is the United Township, while "Burleigh, Anstruther, and Chandos Twps" refers to the three geographic townships. Even so please read carefully – there were many cases where I had to deconstruct documents because the author had not made this distinction.

To save space, the names of three counties have been shortened as follows:

- LA Lennox and Addington County
- PR Prescott and Russell County
- SDG Stormont, Dundas, and Glengarry County

Sources

My reliable sources have been: first, the municipal histories contained in RG 19-20 at the Ontario Archives – but it has been impossible to check more than a few municipalities in this extensive source. Second, the Bureau of Industries 1902 report listing municipalities in the 1881, 1891, and 1901 censuses and giving the "Date of Municipal Organization" for most of them – but this source has some decidedly odd dates. Third, the Ontario Municipal Directory – but its quality varies from year to year with some years being quite unreliable.

Other sources used are Armstrong for early data, Hillman, Mika, and the MNR's geographic townships map. When I have used the RG 19-20 histories, I have listed the source. Since these are the acts and bylaws, they should be taken as accurate. However, there is some evidence of acts and bylaws that were never implemented.

Seeking Records

When looking for a municipality's records, look also for the records of upper tier entity, in this case county or district. Often records have been lumped together and are indexed under the upper tier. This is particularly true of the Ontario Archives and the Family History Library Catalogue, although I have found a similar indexing in smaller archives too.

Pre-1850 records are usually in the records of the district.
