EARLY CHURCH RECORDS

ST. JOSEPH'S ROMAN CATHOLIC CHURCH 1758-1792
PHILADELPHIA, PENNSYLVANIA

By Josephine Landrey # 624

These are the records I copied from the records of Old St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church Registers. The period covered is 1758-1792. This was the oldest Catholic church in Philadelphia and as I understand it, the priests there ministered to the Acadian refugees after their arrival in Philadelphia. The Catholic population of Philadelphia was small at that time and was mostly German and Irish. It is obvious that the spelling of the French names was difficult for them. I have copied them as I found them, but most of the names can be understood.

I have made no attempt to identify these people except for the Landrys listed. The Peter Landry and his wife Josepha are most likely those on p. 1203 of Arsenault. The marriages of their son Antoine and their daughter Anne are listed. There may be some discrepancy here and the entry in Arsenault may be wrong since Stephen White at the Center for Acadian Studies in Moncton says that the Pierre married to Josepha Leblanc was the son of Germain Landry and Marie Melanson, not the parents listed on p. 1203. The Joseph Landry who married Sarah may also be their son. Pierre and Joseph's son Pierre must also have been married to a Josepha and the children born would be their children. Pierre senior then was a widower and remarried in Philadelphia. Pierre's brother, Germain, was also in Philadelphia, but his name does not show up here, although he may have been the father of Marguerite and/or Madeleine Landry as listed here.

The Acadian entries fall off rapidly in the 1780's and it is interesting to see the marriages with Frenchmen, probably refugees from the French Revolution.
